

Easy Does It

The manager of a concern dashed into the owner's office. The owner asked what was the matter.

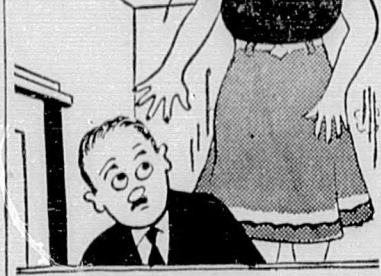

Manager: It's Goodwin, our traveling salesman. Used must insulting language. Told me to try my face and he said you could go chase yourself.

Owner (snapping): He did, did he? Well, I'll fire him without ceremony. Let's see—he's been with us five months. What business has he done in that time?

Manager: Two hundred dollars the first month, five hundred dollars the second month, one thousand dollars the next and five thousand the next.

Owner (thoughtfully): Hmmmm. I often think I ought to take a little more exercise and I dare say the head of the hardware department will give you a trying pan.

POOR SHOT

"Won't your wife hit the ceiling when you get home tonight?"

"She probably will. She's a poor shot."

"When you take pictures bring the film to us."

Almost One-Third Of All U.S. Women Drawing Pay Checks

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Almost one-third of all women of working age are drawing a pay envelope according to the women's bureau of the labor department.

A new handbook on Facts on Women Workers also disclosed that the place of one fifth of the country's married women appears to be outside the home.

"In sharp contrast to the popularly envisioned picture of the 'average' female, consisting of a father, a mother, and children, stands the fact that in 1948 over 6,500,000 families had a woman head," the 75-page compendium said.

Until 1900, women constituted less than 20 per cent of all workers in the labor force, according to the report, based on census figures. Less than 20 per cent of women worked for pay. But in 1947, latest year reported, women in the labor force numbered 15,323,000, constituted 27.6 per cent of all workers, and 29.8 per cent of all women of working age were drawing a pay envelope.

The bureau said it was seeking to promote a more realistic concept of the American family pattern.

Analyzing the economic responsibilities of women workers, the bureau estimated that 84 of every 100 working women do so to support themselves and others.

A section of the handbook on women's earnings showed that the 1946 median of all women working fulltime was $1,671, and that only about one woman in ten made as much as $2,500 annually.

The labor laws for women were analyzed, as was legislation affecting household employees. The political and civil status of women as of Jan. 1, 1948, with all principal legal sex distinctions is noted.

The book concludes with a selected bibliography on American women and a list of national women's organizations.

Alaskan Railroad Manager Says Lady Section Drew Best

WASHINGTON. — Col. J. P. Johnson, general manager of the Alaska Railroad, has reported that "a lady section gang" on his line "has the best kept section along the railroad."

He explained to the senate interior committee that eight Indian women comprised the section gang at Cantwell, about halfway between Anchorage and Fairbanks.

"That section is the best-kept section along the railroad," he said. "It is rugged country."

Bloodhounds Reported Facing Extinction as Breed Declines

LONDON.—Reports from Great Britain that only 30 adult bloodhounds are registered with the English Kennel Club bring the shadow of extinction close to a famous breed of animals that traces its line from the time of the Norman invasion.

Today's bloodhound is believed to be descended from the Talbot hound brought across the English channel by the Normans in the 11th century, the National Geographic Society explains, and adds that the breed is a "ferocious man-hunter is undeserved."

The sad-eyed, long-eared and wrinkled-faced dog actually is docile and friendly.

Mrs. W. B. Perdue returned Friday from a week's visit with her son, Dr. Gilman Perdue, and family, in Ft. Valley, Ga.

States Open Purses to Aid Old-Age Group

WASHINGTON. — Thousands of old folks are going to get more cash from the public purse. Old age assistance funds or payments have been increased in 11 states so far in the 1949 legislative season. Thirty other states are studying proposals to give more money to needy citizens who are 65 or older.

Cash help for the old folks runs into millions. Before the 1949 legislative sessions began, about 2,300,000 men and women were getting such aid. The average payment for the United States as a whole was $41.50. The monthly total topped 100 million dollars.

The funds go to needy people 65 or over—older adults such as those who are not covered by the federal old age and survivors insurance system.

Federal and state governments both contribute money to the old age assistance programs. The federal government shares in payments up to $50 a month.

Minimum Hiked

In the current legislative session, North Dakota increased the minimum payments from $40 to $60 a month in cases where there is only one recipient in a family, and from $30 to $45 where there are more.

The minimum was set at $60 in New Mexico. In Maine, maximum benefits were increased from $40 to $50 a month. Nebraska raised the ceiling from $25 to $55. Montana proposed a hike of $7 in monthly grants that had averaged $45.

The Illinois legislature decided to boost the ceiling from $50 to $65 a month with the provision that the aid would be adjusted up or down as the cost of living rose or fell in the future.

Higher appropriations also were voted in North Carolina, Idaho, Arkansas, West Virginia and South Dakota.

But the traffic wasn't all one way in the 14 capitals where decisions already have been made. Indiana, Utah and Wyoming made no change.

None of the measures adopted thus far this year has hit the high target raised in California. The voters there last fall approved a proposition to increase benefits for senior citizens from $60 to $75 a month. To meet the added costs, for the rest of the fiscal year ending June 30 and for the next fiscal year, the governor has asked an extra $118,235,000.

Proposals now being considered in 13 states vary quite a bit. But in half of them appropriations would be increased without raising the limits on benefits.

Among the many bills in Massachusetts are some seeking a $75 minimum.

A move is under way in Connecticut to remove the $50 ceiling and base payments on actual need. Minnesota's governor favors removal of limits.

Proposals to increase the maximums from $50 to $60 a month have been made in Michigan and Wisconsin.

WHO WON?

The teacher was testing the power of observation of a class. She said sharply: "What is that?"

Instantly a voice from the back row called: "Tails!"

FAST THINKING

The young married man was telling his little helpmate about the previous night's lodge meeting. "The president offered a new silk hat to any husband who would soberly declare that he had never kissed any woman but his own wife, and do you know, not one man stood up!"

"Why didn't you?" glowered his wife.

"Why, darling," he exclaimed, "you know I look terrible in a silk hat."

SCOOPI

The recruit was causing his sergeant a lot of trouble.

Finally the N.C.O. went up to him and said sarcastically: "Do you realize you are the only one in step?"

"Well," said the recruit, "it's no good telling me—you'd better tell the other fellows!"

British Health Plan Imposes Long Wait In Collecting Bills

LONDON—If you were a druggist in England, you would have to wait at least 10 weeks to get paid for that box of headache powders you sold Mrs. Jones.

That's the way the system of prescribed free medicine works under Britain's state health plan.

Fourteen thousand of the 16,000 British chemists (druggists) who signed up for the plan were paid in March for the prescriptions they filled in January.

The chemist accumulates his prescriptions over a month's period. Then he sends the bundle to the local pharmaceutical pricing bureau at the executive council. He gets paid for the cost of the ingredients, plus a fee for dispensing and the container.

The dispensing fee varies according to the number of doses. A bottle of 10 doses gives the chemist a fee of 15 pence (about 22 cents). Another two and a half pence (about five cents) is allowed for the container.

If the chemist feels he isn't getting a fair price he can ask his pharmaceutical union to make a check on his behalf.

Health ministry officials say the chemist is better off under the system because in addition to a larger turnover of prescriptions, he also attracts more people into his shop who frequently spend the money they save on medicines for other articles.

The ministry estimated 75 million free prescriptions were filled in the first few months after the health-service program went into effect July 5, 1948.

The executive councils carry out frequent checks to make certain chemists fill prescriptions properly and use quality medicines.

Oldest Scrolls Of Bible To Go To High Bidder

BALTIMORE—Four leather-bound parchment scrolls, described by a Johns Hopkins university archaeologist as "the greatest manuscript discovery of modern times," will be offered for sale to the highest bidder.

The scrolls are the oldest known to date. Valued at more than a million dollars, they were brought secretly to this country early this year.

Discovered by wandering Arabs in a half-closed cave by the Dead Sea in 1947, the parchments contain the entire Book of the Prophet Isaiah as it appears in the Bible, a commentary on the Book of Habakkuk, and a manual of discipline for a Jewish sect.

Experts say they were written 100 years before Christ—1,100 years before the date assigned to the oldest Hebrew Bible scroll previously known.

Sale Date Soon

An authoritative source, who declined use of his name, said the treasure would go on the block shortly. It is owned by St. Mark's Syrian Orthodox convent in Jerusalem.

He disclosed also that the documents were sent to the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. There chemists reportedly are working over an scroll whose condition has prevented its being unrolled.

St. Mark's was damaged badly in the recent fighting between Israeli and Arab forces in the Holy Land. It expects to get repair money from the sale of the manuscripts.

U. S. May Buy

The hope is that the U. S. Government may buy them. Among interested groups, however, is Yale University.

The find, whose worth to the Christian-Jewish world has been termed incalculable, was brought to America by Athanasius Yeshue Samuel, Syrian archbishop of Jerusalem and Trans-Jordan and Orthodox apostolic delegate to the United States.

The documents were already in the U. S., it was disclosed, when dispatches March 18 reported them hidden and guarded in Syrian homes to prevent possible damage or loss in Palestine fighting.

FOLLOW THE CROWD

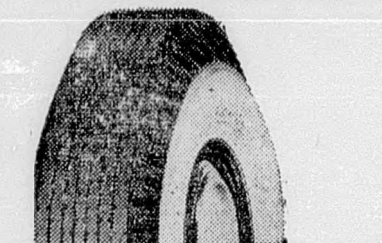

A politician was being interviewed by the press. One reporter asked, "Do you feel that you have influenced public opinion, sir?"

"No," he answered. "Public opinion is something like a rube I once owned. In order to keep up the appearance of being the driver, I had to watch the way he was going and follow closely."

New Railroad Bridge Rises

CARTERSVILLE, GA.—The largest derrick car of its type in the bridge-building business swings a 60-ton girder into position for a new railroad bridge over Allatoona Creek on the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway's relocated track between Cartersville and Atlanta. The new railroad route is occasioned by the reservoir being impounded by the government's new Allatoona Dam and Reservoir Project. The Virginia Bridge Company, subsidiary of United States Steel, is erecting the new bridge, using a 60-ton diesel-operated derrick car. Six 54-ton girders of the type shown above will be required for the bridge. Each is 10 feet, 10 inches deep, one foot, six inches wide and 114 feet, six inches long. Location of the new bridge is shown on the map at left.

SHORT STORY

Mister Gill

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

AT FIRST Mr. O. L. Gill had seemed to take a liking to young Arthur Forbes. He had changed his opinion when the Champion began to buck the choppy seas of the open Atlantic.

Mrs. Dan Prescott is visiting her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Fred Prescott in Montgomery this week.

Mrs. Frank Ingram and Mrs. Amy Butts, of West Palm Beach, Fla., were guests of Mrs. Gustie Hutchison and Mrs. Fannie Cunningham Sunday.

JUST RATTLES ON

So That's It

Tommy went to see his girl. They were sitting on the sofa talking of this and that when suddenly they heard a noise upstairs.

"What's that noise up there?" asked Tommy.

"That's my mother dragging my father's pants across the floor."

"Do you mean to tell me that they make that much noise?"

"Sure, my father's still in them."

Caution

"I made a mistake when I married you."

"No, I made a mistake when I proposed to you!"

"I bet if I died today, you'd marry another woman tomorrow!"

"I would not. I'd take a little rest first."

No More Time

Bill: "I believe the end is near for me, Farewell."

Harry: "Why? What seems to be the trouble?"

Bill: "I bought one of those lifetime fountain pens, and it's broken."

FAIR CONCLUSION

"75 LBS?"

A fat lady stepped on the scales, not knowing they were out of order. The indicator stopped at 75 pounds.

An inebriated guest who just emerged from the neighborhood joint walked her identity, "My gosh," he marveled, "she's hollow!"

Mr. Gill was sober now; his face pale, his eyes glassy.

He watched idly for a few moments and then looked away, conscious of a feeling in his stomach that was wholly normal. The sensation passed and he looked again at the port-hole, feeling more comfortable in this position. Instantly the same strange sensation attacked him again.

Mr. Gill was sober now; his face pale; his eyes glassy. Realization of what was happening to him came like a shock. He was seasick! Helplessly, miserably ill. Never in his life could Mr. Gill remember feeling so utterly at the mercy of anything.

Miraculously Mr. Gill reached the doorway and disappeared up the stairs. Instantly the dining saloon was a bedlam of laughter. Up toward the bow young Arthur Forbes was wiping some white substance from his cheeks and grinning broadly. Several men came over and spoke.

"I'll change your order, sir. Bring you some hot food."

Mr. Forbes smiled. "Thanks. And say, steward, that was a smart idea of yours—sinking me to play the role of the helplessly seasick passenger and placing Gill at that table directly opposite the port-hole."

The steward nodded, eyes a-twinkle. "We have a man like Mr. Gill on board every voyage, sir. And we have that table placed there for just his type. No one else is asked to sit so far forward."

Mr. Forbes chuckled. "Think of everything for the comfort of your passengers, eh? Well, if you didn't I'm afraid this voyage would have proved almost intolerable—with Gill talking the way he was."

THAT STOPPED HIM

Most of the Jones' Sunday morning trip had been marred by a violent quarrel. On their homeward journey they passed a pasture field just as a donkey brayed long and loud.

"Is that a relative of yours?" he asked spitefully.

"Only by marriage, dear," she replied sweetly.

Walt and See

A doctor called on a patient for five visits without giving any satisfaction. On the fifth visit the patient announced he'd called in another doctor.

He said your diagnosis is all wrong.

"Is that so?" snapped the doctor.

"Well, the autopsy will show who's right."

Mr. and Mrs. Milford Brock and son, Horace Milford, of Opelika are visiting Mrs. Lena Brock and other relatives.

Mrs. Bill Knight and children, Anita and Buddy visited Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Hudson during the week-end.

Mrs. Ralph Herring and children, Danny and Elizabeth Ann, visited Mr. and Mrs. Hollis during the week-end.

Don't be annoyed at his ravings. He doesn't hurt anyone, and there's made to think of."

"Have you heard about Henry?" I asked when we were seated.

"I met the poor devil on the street this morning. I don't mind saying that it was an ordeal."

I thoughtfully lit a cigarette. "Well," I said, "think of Madge. Isn't there something we can do?"

"Well," said Hal, "I've been wondering, too. Poor Madge."

He coughed. "I called Bob Taylor on his face. 'Bob Taylor called up as soon as he heard that I was free, and asked if I'd consider a position with him. Well, you know when a man offers you more money—"

"Yes," he said with a bored look on his face. "Bob Taylor called up as soon as he heard that I was free, and asked if I'd consider a position with him. Well, you know when a man offers you more money—"

I glanced at Betty. There was a faint smile on her face. I suppose she was amused. I hope so. Because an hour later, with Henry still blowing, I was mad enough to choke him, and almost did.

SHORT STORY

No Regrets
By Richard Hill Wilkinson

VALERIA'S AFFAIR with Eliot was extremely gratifying. After all, Eliot was the most handsome and the most generous man at New Haven, Yale, and the confession of his love had rather flattered her vanity. But the duration had been brief. "Two months, to be exact. She had smiled a little wistfully the night she handed back his ring. "It's been awful fun, Eliot, but it can't last. The feeling's all on the surface. It isn't real."

"Not real?" He stared at her, unbelieveing. "Good Lord, Val—"

He interrupted her with a gesture of finality. "You're far too glamorous a girl to be so easily won."

A hurt look came into his eyes, to be replaced an instant later by exaggerated indifference. He tossed the ring, caught it, pocketed it. "O. K., sister. I guess I can stand it. His eyes held that smug, "It's a funeral" look that so fitted his role. She felt released, free again. When Doug Metcalf asked her to attend the Country Club ball with him she accepted without qualms of conscience. Doug was big and homely.

"Thought there was no harm in asking," he grinned. "You won't find me as spectacular as Eliot."

He looked at her curiously, seemed on the point of asking a question and thought better of it. She knew that he, like every one else, was wondering if her heart was broken. Well, let them find out for themselves. Their pity annoyed her. Who was this Eliot Harvey, a god or something?

The night of the ball, dancing with Doug Metcalf, she saw Eliot floating by with Sheila Jackson. She was looking down into her upturned face, oblivious to everything else. Valeria felt a little pang, and impatient at herself, gave her attention to Doug. Doug watched her and there was worship in his eyes.

She was dancing a dreamy waltz with Doug when Eliot cut in. Surprised, she found herself in his arms, scarcely before his familiar features became recognizable. "Well, well, well. Look who's here! How's the Don Juan of New Haven?"

"Val, let's go out and get a punch." His tone was almost harsh. Valeria hesitated. "All right," she said. "I could use something like that. It's been a destructive evening. I'm worn out."

"Listen, Val, I can't stand it. I've been crazy ever since you gave me back the ring. I'm going mad. You've got to come back to me!"

Amazed, she stared up at him. His eyes were burning coals. He stood there stripped of his pride and dignity, no longer the confident Don Juan, the breaker of women's hearts.

"Eliot, you're drunk!" "I'm not Val, don't you see I'm not! Don't you see how much I love you?" He dropped down beside her, and suddenly his head was against her breast. He wept.

She stood up, suddenly contemptuous of his frightened and bewildered. So all his indifference, his casual acceptance of her decision to break their engagement, his interest in Sheila Jackson—it had all been pretense! A sham! A mask! An attempt to maintain his Don Juan standing, to nourish his pride and vanity and conceit.

The cream of the Tri-C League, the All-Stars, defeated the Shellhorn team, winner of the first half, on the Shellhorn diamond Sunday afternoon, in a closely contested game 6-5.

A heavy shower just before the game cut down the attendance considerably and prevented several of the All-Star personnel from being present. Two of the Shellhorn players, James Martin and John Gilson, were absent because of weather conditions. "Sluggers" Ralph Johnson and Elmer Johnson, who were the first half, were present and caught a good game and his two lousy doubles figured prominently in his team's victory.

Marshall of Brockton, and Maddox, of New Brockton, did the pitching for the All-Stars and their wildness contributed to the Shellhorn's success. The six-run inning was the result of the pitcher's wildness and some of the fielding misuses.

Laverne displaced Shelton as the Loop leader Thursday preceding the game on Sunday, but the All-Star host team was decided the previous Sunday.

The league schedule is being resumed with games this (Thursday) afternoon. The Redbirds finished the first half in fifth place due to a losing streak early in the season. However the team has materially strengthened and has won a majority of the games the last six weeks. A much better showing is expected in the second half.

Man's conquest of the silver mines in Nevada prior to the establishment of law and order, is vividly portrayed in "Silver River," the latest episode of the Fox Film Corp.'s "Silver River" series, starring Errol Flynn and Ann Sheridan, which opens Sunday at the Elba Theatre.

"Silver River" spans the momentous period from 1865-1882 and takes the hero, Errol Flynn, from the Battle of Gettysburg to Washington D. C., down the Missouri River to St. Joseph and across the plains to the mining town of Silver City, Nevada.

Thomas Mitchell and Bruce Bennett head the supporting cast.

"Silver River" marks the return of Flynn to the devil-may-care type of character which has made him an international favorite. The film also makes a complete change for Miss Behrman. She plays a southern beauty transplanted to the rugged West, who is constantly at odds with the hero.

Warner Bros. cannot expect an expense in making "Silver River." The film also makes a complete change for Miss Behrman. She plays a southern beauty transplanted to the rugged West, who is constantly at odds with the hero.
